Comprehension:*FLOOR PRICES

For certain goods and services, fall in price below a particular level is not desirable and hence the government sets floors or minimum prices for these goods and services. The government imposed lower limit on the price that may be charged for a particular good or service is called price floor. Most well-known examples of imposition of price floor are agricultural price support programmes and the minimum wage legislation. Through an agricultural price support programme, the government imposes a lower limit on the purchase price for some of the agricultural goods. Similarly, through the minimum wage legislation, the government ensures that the wage rate of the labourers does not fall below a particular level.

Comprehension:*GST: One Nation, One Tax, One Market

GST is the biggest tax reform in the country since independence and was rolled out on the mid-night of 30 June/1 July, 2017 during a special midnight session of the Parliament. The 101th Constitution Amendment Act received assent of the President of India on 8 September, 2016. The amendment introduced Article 246A in the Constitution cross empowering Parliament and Legislatures of States to make laws with reference to Goods and Service Tax imposed by the Union and the States. Thereafter CGST Act, UTGST Act and SGST Acts were enacted for GST. GST has simplified the multiplicity of taxes on goods and services. The laws, procedures and rates of taxes across the country are standardised. It has facilitated the freedom of movement of goods and services and created a common market in the country. It is aimed at reducing the cost of business operations and cascading effect of various taxes on consumers. It has also reduced the overall cost of production, which will make Indian products/services more competitive in the domestic and international markets. It will also result into higher economic growth as GDP is expected to rise by about 2%. Compliance will also be easier as all tax payment related services like registration, returns, payments are available online through a common portal www.gst.gov.in. It has expanded the tax base, introduced higher transparency in the taxation system, reduced human interface between Taxpayer and Government and is furthering ease of doing business.

Read the given passage and answer the four questions that follow:-

India's space programme has once again proven its ingenuity and determination with the launch of its first space docking mission. The Space Docking Experiment (SpaDeX) represents more than just a technological milestone - it underscores the nation's aspirations to become a major player in the global space race. This achievement not only cements India's position among elite nations like the United States, Russia, and China but also opens new doors for innovation, collaboration, and economic growth in the space sector. The development and testing of in-space docking technology signals a significant advancement in India's capabilities.

Space docking is a complex process requiring high precision, and mastering it is critical for missions that involve assembling large structures in orbit or servicing satellites. The technology will also play a pivotal role in the future operations of space stations and potential deep-space explorations. For a country committed to creating indigenous solutions for its ambitious space goals, this is a step in the right direction. This mission underscores India's growing ability to combine innovation with sustainability, transforming challenges into opportunities. Re-purposing space debris as a laboratory highlights a forward-thinking approach that benefits both science and the environment. The ingenuity of this mission is further demonstrated by ISRO's decision to re-purpose the fourth stage of the launch vehicle as an orbital laboratory.

As India continues to reach for the stars, SpaDeX is a reminder of the nation's potential to innovate and lead.

SubQuestion No : 1*Q.1

Read the given passage and answer the four questions that follow.-

Are you ready to polish your conversation skills? Do you want to know the most important and ultimately the most interesting subject in the world that any person would love to talk about with you? Ready? Okay. Here it is: The key is simple: talk about the most important subject to anyone—themselves. People love to talk about their lives, interests, and experiences. When you centre conversations around others, they'll be drawn to you.

Think of a social event where someone talked only about themselves. Was it enjoyable? Probably not. Now recall someone who focused on you, asking about your life and showing genuine interest. Which person would you prefer to spend time with?

To be a sought-after conversationalist, shift from using "I," "my," and "mine" to "you" and "your." For example, say: "How are you today?" "What are your thoughts on this?" "Is there anything I can help you with?" "This subtle shift can significantly increase your influence and appeal.

Another powerful tip is to encourage others to talk about themselves. Ask open-ended questions like: "How is everything going?" "What have you been up to since we last met?" "How is your family doing?"

Show true interest and listen actively. When people feel valued and heard, they'll naturally enjoy your company. Stop focusing on yourself. Instead, prioritize the person you're talking to. By doing so, you'll build stronger connections and leave a positive, lasting impression.

Read the given passage and answer the four questions that follow:-

An old beggar cried for alms at the gate. They told her not to pester them when they were engaged in a snake-hunt. On hearing it, the old woman became happy. "You are fortunate. It is God Subramanya who has come to visit you. Don't kill the snake". Mother was in hearty agreement: -"You are right. I forgot all about the promised abhishekam. This is a reminder." She gave a coin to the beggar, who promised to send down a snake-charmer as she went. Presently an old man appeared at the gate and announced himself as a snake-charmer. They gathered around him. He spoke to them about his life and activities and his power over snakes. They asked admiringly:- "How do you catch them? Thus," He said, pouncing upon a hypothetical snake on the ground. They pointed to the direction in which the cobra had gone and asked him to go ahead. He looked helplessly about and said: "If you show me the snake. I'll at once catch it. Otherwise, what can I do?" He gave his name and address and departed. At five in the evening, they threw away their sticks and implements and retired to the veranda to rest. They had turned up every stone in the garden and cut down every grass-blade and shrub so that the tiniest insect coming into the garden should have no cover.
